Matt Schmitt an all-star

By Derek Hoesly
CORRESPONDENT

Matt Schmitt participated in the Wisconsin Basketball Coaches Association Senior All-Star Game on Saturday, June 17, at JustAGame Fieldhouse.

The all-stars had to raise money for a worthy cause, the MACC Fund (Midwest Athletes Against Childhood Cancer). Schmitt collected a total of a little over $1,500. The All-Star game event racked up an astonishing $436,000 combined between the boys and girls. That total was a record-breaking mark for the event. Schmitt was recognized, along with all the other talented all-stars, with a banquet on Friday evening.

"It's kind of tough to raise money, but it's going for a good cause, and no matter how much you raise, it's all going to be put into helping other people with cancer," Schmitt said. "Everyone's willing to donate for it, and the money is going to a good home."

Schmitt was on the Division 5 South squad. The south all-stars earned a 102-96 win over the Division 5 North team. Schmitt contributed 10 points on 2-for-5 shooting and 6-for-8 from the free-throw line in the contest. He also snatched five rebounds.

Schmitt averaged a double-double for the Panthers during the regular season with 15 points and 13 rebounds.

"It was fun being a part of the All-Star Game experience. I was lucky enough to be picked for it. It was quite an honor to be a part of it and to play with some of the best seniors in the state," Schmitt said. "It's kind of fun being on one of the best teams in the state."

"It was a tremendous honor for Matt to earn a spot on the team with some of the best seniors in the state," coach James Pickett said. "Matt's hard work and dedication to basketball and all of his high school athletics paid off. He's been the leader of our basketball program for the past four years. He finished his career with 1,135 career points. He will be very difficult to replace."

Farm to Table dinner coming to Green County

Wisconsin Farm to Table has announced the location of the fourth annual Farm to Table dinner and fundraiser. Scheduled for Saturday, Aug. 19, the elegant dinner will be hosted in the rolling pasture of Voegeli Farms, Inc., a dairy farm situated between Monticello and New Glarus, Wis.

This memorable dining experience is designed to bring consumers and farmers together to explore the world of agriculture, focusing on animal care, environmental practices, and the safe and pure food products consumed at family dinner tables throughout the year. Wisconsin agriculture will be discovered through a unique on-farm culinary experience. Guests may explore the taste of Wisconsin's agricultural diversity from prestigious cheeses, wines, meats, vegetables, and beyond.

The evening's creations will be prepared and presented by local chef and self-proclaimed farm kid, Tyler Sailsbery. Chef Sailsbery is the head chef and owner of The Black Sheep in Whitewater, Wis., where he works with local farmers to craft unique dishes, packed with fresh ingredients and divine flavors. Chef Sailsbery also works as the executive chef and general manager for Fin & Hooves, inside the Whitewater Country Club, which offers a casual and fun atmosphere, with a menu focused on local beef and fresh seafood.

Located at N7190 State Road 69, Monticello, Wis., the Voegeli Farm is home to a long lineage of Brown Swiss dairy cattle. Bryan Voegeli, his brother Jimmy, mother Alice, children Brienna and Christopher, and the farm's great staff are all involved in this sixth-generation dairy farm that was homesteaded in 1854. In 1895, the first Brown Swiss cows to set foot on the farm were purchased by Voegeli's great-grandfather. This dairy breed has flourished on the farm's rolling hills ever since — thanks in part to Voegeli's father, Howard's, legacy. Now composed of just over 1,000 acres with 220 Swiss cows in the milking herd, the Voegeli Farm still carries symbols of the region's Swiss heritage while supplying milk for both award-winning cheese and most recently, a new yogurt product.

"Directly connecting consumers with the food produced from our farm and surrounding farms in an atmosphere we get to work in every day is an opportunity we couldn't pass up," Voegeli said. "We're excited for the quality foods and beverages showcased, along with the fun, on-farm experience, to create lasting, fond memories for everyone attending."

This storied dairy farm, coupled with the lush rolling backdrop of Green County and Wisconsin's long-standing agricultural history, serves as a prime location to bring together consumers and farmers from around their respective regions. A farm tour is scheduled at 5 p.m., followed by a cocktail hour and live music entertainment at 6 p.m., and concluding the evening's program will be a catered dinner at 7 p.m.

To secure dinner tickets and for more information, visit www.wifarmtotable.com, call event contact, Kari Kuehl, at (262) 203-4016, or email wifarmtotable@gmail.com. The event is open to the public and specifically influential people in the surrounding region who are interested in learning more about agriculture and where their food originates. The event is limited to the first 100 guests. Those interested are encouraged to purchase tickets early.

Wisconsin Farm to Table is a non-profit event organization established in 2013 to offer an on-farm experience with a farm tour, elegant dinner, and dialogue between those interested in agriculture and where their food originates. Money raised from annual event is donated to a local not-for-profit of the host farm's choice.

Exploring geometry across the curriculum

Over the past two months, Albany High School students in Mr. Schwab's geometry class have been working hard on a variety of projects that fuse together geometric concepts with content from other curricular areas. The projects that were adopted into the Albany curriculum in 2015 have showcased the many talents of the student of Albany High School. Projects have included: barn quilts, quilt blocks, miniature golf holes, documentaries, television shows, songs, art projects, geometric poems, children stories, geometrically inspired food, carpentry projects, and welding projects. Mr. Schwab said, "It's really been interesting to see all the different projects that the students have come up with. They do a really good job of planning out their projects and incorporating the various geometric concepts they've learned throughout the year."

Parkview students celebrate the end of the year

On, June 6, the last full day of school, Parkview Elementary School (PES) held a daylong, school-wide celebration of the conclusion of another year of learning.

Students rotated between different stations all day long. There were seven different stations and a picnic lunch in the park.

“Making Reading Fun” featured Orfordville Public Library director Sarah Strunz reading the kids a story and telling them about all of the different summer activities that will take place at the library.

“Wild about Animals” had two parts. Dianne Myhre talked about Endeavor Service Dogs, which provides service dogs for children up to 18. She explained to the students how the dogs are trained, what they do for children they become a service animal for, and how to act around a service animal. She said you should always ask the person with a dog with a vest whether it’s OK to pet their dog and never just run up and pet the dog, as the dog is working. She added that this really applies to any dog.

Myhre’s son Isaiah has been training dogs for Endeavor for about a year. The students have seen some of the dogs in the school before, but this was an opportunity for them to learn more about the dogs.

She also had some of the dogs with her and demonstrated some the different things the dogs are trained to do or not do. They are trained not to take a treat unless they are told by the trainer that they can have it. Many of the dogs go to children with autism, and they are often comforted by their dog coming and sitting on their lap or snuggling up close to them.

The second part of “Wild about Animals” was put on by a volunteer for the Dane County Humane Society, Marcia Schauff, who is a retired Parkview Primary teacher. She taught the students rules of pet ownership, such as providing proper care, avoiding certain foods, providing health care for pets, and microchipping, plus pet-owner responsibility such as cleaning up after your dog when you walk it in a public place.

Schauff also talked about some of the other pets people have in addition to dogs and cats. She brought along a “friend” for the students to touch if they wanted to, a corn snake. She explained that snakes are either venomous or non-venomous and that most in Wisconsin are non-venomous.

“Epic Games” was another station. The students could play Connect 4, Jenga (with giant Jenga sets), outdoor Twister where the dots were painted on the grass, and Tic-Tac-Toe with disk.

“Wet and Wild” involved water games such as a sponge toss.

“Memory Lane” was the first stop of the day for sixth-grade students. Sixth-graders opened their time capsules that they put together at the end of third grade to open at the end of sixth grade. The other grades stopped at Memory Lane and “clapped the sixth-graders out.”

The stop that may have been the students’ favorite was “I Scream.” Students stopped at the Rock County Dairy trailer that was visiting for the day and received a chocolate, vanilla, or chocolate/vanilla twist cone.

Vacation Bible Camp registration still open

Registrations for the Vacation Bible Camp at St. Peter Lutheran Church are still being accepted. You may register over the phone (897-2092), on our church website at www.stpeterlutheranbrodhead.org, or by calling 897-2092, and we will deliver registrations to your home -- as many as you need. (If needed, you may also register the first day of camp, but early registration helps us plan ahead.)

Our camp will be held from Monday, July 10, to Friday, July 14, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. each day. This year’s theme is “I Witness News,” reminding everyone that Jesus asks us to witness the great things He has done, and is still doing, for us.

There is no cost to be a part our summer Bible camp, and all children who are entering kindergarten through the seventh grade are welcomed to attend. Lunch and snacks will be provided for everyone. Limited local transportation will be available on a first-come, first-served basis.

St. Peter Lutheran of Brodhead is located at the corner of 17th Street and West 5th Avenue.

We hope to see you here, and if you’ve been here before and really enjoyed it, invite your friends!

Luther Valley Historical Society to highlight carriage building

The Luther Valley Historical Society invites all members and the public to attend a presentation on the history of carriage building on Thursday, July 13, at 7:30 p.m.

The meeting will be held at the Peterson barn at 2821 Polzin Road, west of Janesville, between County Hwy A and US 14.

Dr. Dan will review the human story about wheeled horse-drawn vehicles starting 3,300 years ago. He will explain features of carriage construction and their evolution, and he will discuss carriage types and help those attending understand why horse-and-carriage folks say, "My hobby is driving me buggy!"

Refreshments will be served.

Three records broken at Parkview Track and Field Day

Each year, Parkview Elementary School holds a Track and Field Day for fifth- and sixth-grade students. Student records are all posted on the concession stand, and many go back quite a few years. This year's event saw three school records broken. The records broken were: the boy's high jump, with the new record of 4'6" set by fifth-grader Graysen Cramer (pictured here); the girls' softball record, set by fifth-grader Kylie Stark with a throw of 120'7"; and the boys' 4x200, broken by fifth-graders Graysen Cramer, Sam Schwengels, Jean Luc Vigneault, and Karson Redman.

Crochet is a lifelong skill

Jennifer Lacy paid a visit to the Albany art room to share her love of crocheting with seventh-grade art students. Lacy has created many garments for herself and her children using a crochet hook and yarn. After she demonstrated how to make a slip knot and chain stitch, the students all started a small crochet project. Lacy has donated more than 10 pairs of crochet hooks, over 20 pairs of knitting needles, and many skeins of yarn from her stash to the Albany art program. It is with good fortune that we have such a talented artist in our community willing to share her expertise and materials.

We give thanks for all who served our country.

Harvard Milk Days

2017 Harvard Milk Days Queen Gianah Tomczak sits enthroned on a float with a part of her court in the parade.

Impact of dairy reaches beyond the barn doors

Below is a guest column from Wisconsin Department of Agriculture, Trade and Consumer Protection (DATCP) Secretary Ben Brancel:

The benefits of Wisconsin's dairy industry reaches far beyond the barn doors. While our Wisconsin farm families rely on the dairy business for their livelihood, we all rely on dairy for the impact it has on our state's economy, culture and future.

We see America's Dairyland on our license plates every day while driving down the highway, but we likely take what that really means for granted. Dairy contributes $43.4 billion to Wisconsin's economy annually. That is more than if you combine the value of citrus to Florida, potatoes to Idaho, apples to Washington and raisins to California. These dollars support local communities, businesses and schools.

Our friends and neighbors, in urban and rural areas of the state, have jobs that are related to the state's dairy industry. The dairy industry employs 78,900 people in the state. Jobs created by dairy businesses bring long-term stability to local employment bases. Every job in agriculture supports an additional 1.46 jobs elsewhere in Wisconsin.

Wisconsin's universities and technical schools prepare young people for future careers in the dairy business, from animal science and biotechnology to equipment engineering and marketing. There is a place for everyone who wants to work in Wisconsin's dairy industry.

Wisconsin's dairy industry may be changing but it continues to be strong. Every farm is unique. When you drive down the road, you won't see any two farms that are identical. Some farms are small and rely on robotic technology to get the milking done. Others are large and produce organic milk. Our diversity is our state's greatest strength. With more than 9,000 dairy farms and 400 dairy processors, we all benefit from these beautiful bovines and the quality products created from their milk.

More than a quarter of the nation's cheese is made right here in our state by our cheeseheads. Our dairy processors create more than 600 types, styles and varieties of cheese, and they continue to do research to ensure they are meeting our customer needs in the future. At national and international award events, Wisconsin's cheesemakers are recognized for their quality work, taking home top prizes again and again.

Wisconsin's reputation as a dairy state has spread around the world. Wisconsin sells its agricultural products to 150 different countries. When you say you are from Wisconsin, international government officials and business leaders are immediately engaged in how they can learn from our expertise or buy our products. Wisconsin's cows produce milk every day of the week. One day out of seven, this milk is being made into products that will go beyond our country's borders. Dairy is a worldwide business we are lucky to have in Wisconsin.

It is fitting that the World Dairy Expo calls Wisconsin home. Each fall, the dairy industry comes to Madison to meet for the five-day event. World Dairy Expo features a premier dairy show with more than 2,000 elite dairy cattle. The enormous trade show allows agribusinesses to showcase the latest in technology and research. The business meetings and farm tours that occur during World Dairy Expo build connections that continue to grow throughout the year.

It's June Dairy Month. Let's celebrate. Visit <http://www.dairydaysofsummer.com/> to find a dairy breakfast or event near you. The best thing you can do to support our hardworking family farmers is to come out to the farm, take a tour and enjoy a meal together. Every time you drink a glass of milk, grab a string cheese or have yogurt with lunch, you are contributing to the continued success and the future of Wisconsin's dairy industry.

JUNE IS DAIRY MONTH

Happy, healthy cows produce dairy products best

A cow's health is of utmost importance to dairy farmers. Dairy farmers know that healthy, comfortable, and well-treated animals produce high-quality, wholesome dairy foods for people around the world.

Shelter

- Dairy cows always have access to clean water while in the housing area. Many of today's dairy farms use "free-stall" housing, a type of barn that allows cows the freedom to move about at will and eat and sleep whenever they choose.

In this housing configuration, feed for the animals is available in a feed alley (a clean, impervious surface), which cows can access 24 hours a day. In addition, the barns are designed to provide sunshine and fresh air.

- Many dairy farmers also have installed rubber or other non-slip flooring in their barns to make it easier for the cows to move around.

- Cows need to lie down or rest 12-14 hours a day. Cows may sleep on sand beds or bedded mattresses filled with rubber, foam, or a combination of materials with bedding on top of the mattress.

- Most dairy barns have advanced ventilation systems to assure air quality. On warm days, farmers use fans and water misters to keep cows cool and comfortable.

Proper animal care leads to the production of high-quality milk. Nutritious diets, healthy living conditions, and good veterinary care are all essential for a healthy herd, and

Dairy summit brings together industry leaders, UW researchers

More than 200 people were in attendance at the UW System Wisconsin Idea Dairy Summit today recently in Madison. Top researchers, industry leaders, and policy makers met to identify challenges and opportunities for the dairy industry moving forward. The dairy industry and farmers are vitally important to Wisconsin's economy with farms producing 30 billion pounds of milk each year.

"Wisconsin is widely known as 'The Dairy State.'" From evidence-based research to the development of new products, we aim to be the best in the world," said UW System President Ray Cross. "Looking around at the talented people assembled at the summit, I am confident Wisconsin will continue to be recognized internationally as the standard-bearer for this industry."

The summit was divided into three sessions:

- Understanding Dairy Industry Issues in Wisconsin
- Addressing Challenges and Meeting Opportunities Today
- Creating a Vibrant Dairy Industry for Wisconsin's Future

These sessions featured presentations on topics including dairy processing and production techniques, Agribusiness, Food Science, the future of the dairy industry, and much more.

"The summit was an excellent start in what I hope will develop a strengthened connection throughout the entire structure of the dairy sector in Wisconsin," said Department of Agriculture, Trade, and Consumer Protection Secretary Ben Brancel.

The Dairy Summit was the first UW System Wisconsin Idea Summit, which is an initiative in the System's 2020FWD strategic framework. The UW System will convene listening and engagement sessions across the state as needed to help address the most pressing challenges in the state. These summits will engage community, business, government, and non-profit leaders to galvanize interest, share expertise, and find solutions.

these are among the many animal care practices routinely used by dairy farmers. Animal scientists and dairy farmers continually explore different ways to improve the comfort of dairy cows.

In addition to their commitment to their cows, dairy farmers and the dairy community have created FARM (Farmers Assuring Responsible Management), a nationwide, verifiable animal well-being program that brings consistency and uniformity to on-farm animal care and production practices.

The FARM platform provides farmers with education on animal care and provides the public with added assurance of appropriate animal care.

Feeding and grazing

- Farmers often employ professional nutritionists to develop scientifically formulated, balanced, and nutritious diets for their cows. A typical diet may include hay and hay silage, corn silage, or other available forages, grains, protein sources (such as soy) and other vitamins and minerals.

- A cow has four stomachs; the first three stomachs process feed in a way that people cannot. Because of this unique digestive system, cows have the ability to convert plants that humans cannot eat into nutritious foods like milk.

- Access to pasture is determined mainly by geography, herd size, availability of land suitable for grazing, and weather conditions. Many factors affect the type of environment available to dairy cows. In all cases, the well-being, protection and comfort of their cows are very important concerns for dairy farmers.

Health and veterinary attention

- Dairy cows interact every day with farm employees during their regularly scheduled milkings.

- Cows receive regular veterinary care, such as periodic check-ups, preventative vaccinations, and prompt treatment of illness.

Calf care

- Cows produce milk once they deliver a calf. About 10 to 12 months after calving, the amount of milk the cow gives naturally decreases substantially. A cow will undergo a dry or non-lactating period for 45-60 days prior to her next calving.

During this time, she is no longer milked and receives a special diet and housing to properly prepare for calving. About 12 to 14 months after the birth of her previous calf, a cow will calve again, thus providing the next cycle of milk production.

- Dairy farmers provide a clean, dry, well-lit, and well-ventilated separate calving area to ensure comfortable, safe and hygienic conditions for both mother and calf.

- Separate living quarters are provided immediately after the birth of a calf to protect its health and ensure the best individual care and begin to bond to their human caregivers.

Because newborn calves need time to build up their immune systems, it is better that they are not exposed to germs in the environment or germs that can be passed on from older animals.

Another way farmers ensure the health of their calves is by feeding newborns two to four quarts of colostrum—the first milk the mother produces after giving birth.

This special milk is usually delivered by bottle. Colostrum is high in fat and protein and contains antibodies that help build the calf's immune system.

Observation is important to ensure

- It is important to note that dairy cows are not routinely treated with antibiotics. On every dairy farm, antibiotics are only used when a cow is sick.

When illness requires that cows be treated, antibiotics are administered according to strict FDA guidelines, which include withholding milk from treated cows so that it never leaves the farm and cannot be sold or used for food for people.

When a cow's milk is withheld, she is given special care and attention separate from the rest of milking herd until her milk is once again free of antibiotics.

- Every tanker load of milk is strictly tested for antibiotics. For the 12-month period ending Sept. 20, 2013, more than four million tests (4,115,774) were conducted on 3,761,500 milk samples to detect antibiotic or other drug residues with less than 0.02% positive (731).

Any milk testing positive was destroyed—it never reached the consumer market. 14 Farmers are financially liable if antibiotics are found in their milk.

Swiss immigrants set as topic of genealogical society meeting

Janette Hartman will speak on the 1832 journey of the Emma Rudolf family, immigrants from Switzerland, through St. Louis up the Fever River area, finally making their way to New Glarus. Hartman wasn't able to make the June meeting and agreed to come to the July 1 meeting.

These immigrants' experiences are similar to those of others. Hartman will speak about the hamlet known as Hamilton and the family it was named after.

Janette Hartman is the former curator/administrator of the Iowa County, Wisconsin Society Museum with an interest and knowledge of the early history of southwestern Wisconsin.

The Green County Genealogical Society meeting will be held in the second-floor meeting room of the Monroe Public Library at 10 a.m.,

Saturday, July 1. Visitors are always welcomed, and there is no cost to attend. You may call Sharon Mitchell (815-868-2416) or Donna Kjendlie (608-921-1537) if you have questions.

The GCGS Research Center (located in lower level of the Monroe Public Library) is available to the public for research. New summer hours (June through September) are: Tuesdays and the third Saturday 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., Fridays 1 to 4 p.m. The main holdings are on Green County. Both Rock and Lafayette Counties are well represented, along with several other counties, states, countries, and ethnic groups. A large clipping collection of births, marriages, and obituaries is available. Volunteers are on staff to help with your research.

Dairy Youth Recognition Auction scholarship winners announced

Five Green County area youth were recently selected to receive scholarships through the annual Dairy Youth Recognition Auction Scholarship Program. The scholarships are funded through proceeds garnered from the Green County Dairy Youth Recognition Auction that is held in conjunction with the Cheese Auction conducted by the Foreign Type Cheesemakers Association at the County Fair.

Scholarships were awarded on the basis of information provided by the applicant that included their involvement in the dairy project, leadership skills they gained in 4-H and FFA, and their future career goals.

An applicant must be a senior in high school or enrolled in secondary education and be an active Green County dairy project member in 4-H or FFA to be eligible to apply for this scholarship. The scholarships do not require that youth go into a dairy-related career.

A total of $3,250 was distributed this year by the Dairy Youth Auction Committee. Receiving Dairy Youth Scholarships were: Mitchell Dammen, son of Gary and Amy Dammen, Argyle; Travis Oliver, son of Kirk and Dawn Oliver, Albany; Lauren Blumer, daughter of Trent and Krishell Blumer, Albany; Brienne Graber, daughter of Perry and Cheryl Graber, Monticello and Ashely Judd, daughter of Jeff and Melanie Judd, New Glarus.

These youth will be formally recognized at the 2017 Green County Dairy Youth Auction to be held on July 23 during the Green County Fair. Over $36,000 in scholarships have been awarded to Green County Youth through this auction since 2004. For more information on the Dairy Youth Recognition Auction Program in Green County, please contact Mark Mayer at the UW-Extension Office at 328-9440.

Green County 4-H youth participate in Foods Revue

Members of the Green County 4-H Foods & Nutrition project recently participated in the annual Foods Revue event on Saturday, June 10, at the Green County Justice Center. Foods Revue is considered a pre-fair event of the Green County Fair and is judged by a licensed fair judge with ribbons being awarded to the youth.

Youth are divided into four levels based on grade and can bring one food item and one educational exhibit to be judged at the Foods Revue. Examples of project options this year were a tailgate party meal, any food using watermelon, and a main dish salad.

This year's participants were Devri Bennett (Cheese Country Clovers), Simon Blohowiak (Washington Center), Hannah Broger (Washington Center), Mara Dickson (Browntown Busy Beavers), Skye Dickson (Browntown Busy Beavers), Katelyn Eyler (Washington Center), Emily Goers (Washington Center), Taetum Hoesly (Clarence Bridge Pioneers), Leilah King (Hiawatha), Alexis Moen (Browntown Busy Beavers), Marissa Vosberg (Young Americans), and Kierra Zahradka (Clarno).

For more information about Green County 4-H or the Foods & Nutrition project, please contact Ellen Andrews, 4-H Youth Development Educator, at 608-328-9440, or visit our website at green.uwex.edu.

Local 4-H club members teach others through adventure

On Saturday, May 27, the Next Generation 4-H Club of Juda hosted a 4-H youth adventure table in the Educational Tent at the 2017 Green County Breakfast on the Farm in Brooklyn. The visitors to the breakfast enjoyed interacting with the club members by getting balloons, planting vegetable seeds and made a minion craft projects. The two families who hosted this year's 4-H youth adventure table were the Ryan Andrew family from Juda and the Justin Bolton family from Brodhead.
