'Free Fun Weekend' set for this weekend in Wis. State Parks, Trails

By Tony Ends
CORRESPONDENT

Maybe your budget is a little tight right now, or work is not letting you travel far to take a breather in the fresh air, or spend a little time with loved ones fishing.

Whatever's keeping you from enjoying a little rest and relaxation on public lands, Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources invites you to a "Free Fun Weekend" this Saturday and Sunday, June 2 and 3. And Green County residents need not go far to find a state park or trail.

"Trail passes are not required on the Sugar River State Trail, or any other DNR-managed trails on June 2 and 3," said Paul Holtan, who covers communications for Wisconsin DNR. "Another trail through Green County is the Badger State Trail.

"Other properties nearby that are free this weekend include New Glarus Woods State Park, Cadiz Springs State Recreation Area, Lake Kegonsa State Park just across the Dane County line. In neighboring Iowa County, Governor Dodge State Park has a free fishing program from 10:30 a.m. to noon followed by a free program at 2 p.m. on preparing your catch for a fish fry," Holtan said in a statement on the event to the Independent Register last week.

On Free Fun Weekend, Wisconsin residents and visitors can fish for free, hike or bike state trails for free, enjoy free admission to state parks and forests and ride public All Terrain Vehicle trails for free, according to the DNR.

Wisconsin has counted as many as 14 million visits annually to its 95 state parks, forests and trails. Maintaining, staffing and providing protection on the properties poses no small expense to the state.

Bikers, cross country skiers, horseback riders, even in-line skaters visit 41 state trails alone, for which operation and maintenance on average cost Wisconsin just under $70,000 a year. User fees typically generate just under $30,000 a year, and Wisconsin makes up the difference with revenue from park admission stickers and camping fees.

"Free Fun Weekend is a great time to get outside and try something you've never done before, or introduce a family member or friend to something you've always enjoyed," said Department of Natural Resources Secretary Dan Meyer, in a release on this weekend.

A portion of Sugar River Trail stretches out a greeting to cyclists and joggers to enjoy Green County's countryside near Albany. Extending from Brodhead to New Glarus, the Sugar River is just one of 41 trails that user fees help Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources staff maintain. Yet this weekend anyone can enjoy state trails and parks for free.

"Whether it's fishing, hiking or riding the trails, experiencing Wisconsin's great outdoors during this weekend could just be the start of a new tradition for you," Meyer stated.

On Free Fun Weekend across Wisconsin:

- No fishing license is needed to fish any waters. This includes inland trout and Great Lakes trout and salmon fishing, which normally would require a trout stamp in addition to a license. Fishing rules such as limits on the size and species of fish that can be kept do apply, however.
- All state trail pass fees on all DNR-owned state trails are waived and cooperatively-run state trails also may waive fees.
- All state park vehicle admission sticker fees on all DNR-owned properties are waived.
- ATV registration and trail pass fees are waived.

Free fishing equipment is available for loan at more than 50 state parks, DNR offices, and partner organizations. Free fishing classes are scheduled at many state parks and popular waters, including High Cliff, Kohler-Andrea, Lakeshore state parks and the southern Unit of the Kettle Moraine State Forest. You can access more specific details on the classes at the state DNR website.

In addition, on Saturday, the Friends of the Pike Lake Unit of the Kettle Moraine State Forest are holding "Discovery Day" that will feature geocaching, archery, t-shirt painting, a wildlife show, kayak demos, telescope viewing, fishing and hiking. This event concludes with a grand opening ceremony and dedication of the new outdoor amphitheater featuring live music and guest speakers.

On Sunday, the Friends of Willow River and Kinnickinnic State Parks are holding an event called "Art Along the Willow" at Willow River State Park. More than 40 art and craft vendors, kids activities and concessions are planned. Anyone can visit the Friends website via a link from the DNR website to obtain more information.

Free Fun Weekend provides citizens of Wisconsin and visitors to the state a chance to participate in Wisconsin State Parks' new OutWiGo initiative, intended to promote good health through the outdoors. Participants are asked to tag their Free Fun Weekend photos with #OutWiGo and sign the pledge to a healthier 2018.

More information about this free weekend on public lands in Wisconsin's outdoors is available on DNR's website. Go to dnr.wi.gov and search "free fun." You can follow DNR on social for media for more updates between newsletters. DNR has social media platforms on Facebook, Instagram, Twitter, YouTube and Pinterest.

Faster broadband on the way to Green Co.

This press release was issued by the Green County Development Corporation

Parts of Green County lacking adequate internet service will be getting broadband as part of a $414,000 grant from the Public Service Commission to the Green County Development Corporation.

With pledged matching funds of more than $631,000, the Broadband Expansion Project will total more than $1 million to increase access to high speed internet in Green County.

To accomplish this, GCDC is partnering with Bug Tussel Wireless™ to place four towers throughout the county in areas that are unserved, are underserved or don't receive sufficient speed. Adding these towers is expected to help 205 business locations and 1,482 residences.

The towers will serve the Town of Clarno, the community of Martintown in the Town of Cadiz, the community of Oakley in the Town of Spring Grove, and the community of York Center in the Town of York. The towers are expected to be on air by the first quarter of 2019.

Reliable high speed internet access is vital for local businesses to stay competitive. It's also critical for the health and safety of citizens as it provides full internet access to law enforcement, fire protection and emergency medical services, as well as educational opportunities for students who live in rural areas. The proposal drew wide support from first responders, local governments, businesses and private citizens.

In addition to the four tower sites approved under the Broadband Expansion Grant, Bug Tussel has several other tower sites that were previously approved and in progress in Green County. Sites east of Monroe, in Belleville and in Albany were scheduled for completion this spring, while additional towers in Exeter, Postville and Prairie View are scheduled to be on air by September. Bug Tussel is also working on site acquisition for towers north of Browntown, north of Monroe and in downtown Monroe. Those sites are expected to be complete by the end of 2018.

The Green County grant is part of a total $7.86 million in broadband expansion grants throughout Wisconsin that were announced in April.

The birds are back, the grass is green again, and the air outside is sweet and refreshing. Perhaps you're in the mood to freshen up your surroundings by shopping for a new home, or making updates to your current home. Or maybe it's time to get a fresh start and open that new business you've been dreaming about.

No matter where you are or where you want to go, the Bank of New Glarus® and Sugar River Bank Branches can help you get there. With five locations in Belleville, Brodhead, Juda, Monroe, and New Glarus, our branches and lenders are always nearby, which means that your financial goals and dreams are always within reach.

Pastor's Corner

By Peder Johanson
PASTOR, BETHLEHEM LUTHERAN CHURCH

The grace of our Lord, Jesus Christ, the love of God, and the communion with the Holy Spirit be with you all.

— 2 Corinthians 13:13

These words, affectionately known as the "apostolic greeting", are spoken as a part of our liturgy nearly every Sunday. They are from Paul's second letter to the church in Corinth. Despite being known and used through the ages as a traditional greeting, these were actually Paul's closing words, his final remarks.

They read much like a blessing (and perhaps that is how the apostle meant it), but they also follow Paul's parting wisdom, his last advice for the Corinthians. I believe these words are a blessing whenever they are spoken and heard, but I believe we would do well to receive them also as a sort of instruction for our life together.

Let us live in the grace of Jesus Christ. Let us live and move and have our being as though this grace has done for us what Jesus promised. We are forgiven, we are claimed as God's children and heirs of eternal life, we are set free by this gift to live in confidence and hope that God's future is at hand. What would it feel like and look like in your life and in our life together for this grace to be with us always?

Let us be always in God's love. Let us know in our hearts and in our bones that we are fiercely and passionately loved by the God of all creation. That God will never give up on us, will never tire of forgiving us, healing us, and receiving us as we are, rejoicing in the unique beauty and wonder by which God has made each of us. What would it feel like and look like in your life and in our life together for this love to be with us always?

Let us be always in communion with the Holy Spirit. Let us gather as Christ's Church in faith that we are gathered by the Spirit, that the Spirit dwells within us and we in her, and that our own fellowship with each other reflects the fellowship we have with God. What would it feel like and look like in your life and in our life together for this communion to be our primary identity?

If it is the apostle's blessing and advice that we as Christ's church be a people of grace, love, and communion with God, how do we honor that? What does that mean for us and how does that direct our living?

Those are some pretty big questions and I don't have any simple answers.

This is a blessing, a hopeful promise that God will do what God does for us in grace, love, and fellowship, always molding us into the people and the community God desires us to be. In some ways we are passive recipients of this divine action.

This is also advice, a descriptive word of what we are to be – and to ever become – as those committed to the way of Jesus. We are blessed by grace to embody grace in the world. We are filled with love to give it away as boldly and enthusiastically as we receive it. We are brought into fellowship with God that our fellowship with one another would be holy and life-giving.

So what might we do with that? How will our witness as the faithful honor the blessing and live into the instruction of the apostle's words? Where do you see our churches and communities doing this already?

I invite you to ponder these questions with others in your life, be they members of your congregation, bible study, or friends in the larger community. Reflect on this life for which we are blessed and to which we are called and consider what you may offer as we seek together a faithful life as Christ's Church in the world.

Thank you for your engagement this month, and until next time, dear friends, may the grace of our Lord, Jesus Christ, the love of God, and the communion of Holy Spirit be with you all.

BTC Enterprise Center hosts Soil Sisters 2018 kick-off event

By Tony Ends
CORRESPONDENT

Connectivity took on a warm, personal feel often missing in a digital age last week at Blackhawk Tech's Enterprise Center in Monroe.

Food and fiber producer members of the Soil Sisters piled into the college center last Wednesday evening, May 9. Many of the more than 20 women who'll host farm events in the growing organization's signature event Aug. 2 to 5 took part in the preview.

With tasty samples, product displays and plentiful conversation, the women from three counties made it clear no one need wait for the summer fun to begin.

"We're real passionate about stewarding our landscape, meeting needs of our families and growing our communities," said Lisa Kivirist of Inn Serendipity, Browntown, in introducing team members of the group, which has grown from eight to more than 200 in just a few years. "Never underestimate the power of women to get things done, and do it with some good food and wine."

Networking throughout the 2-hour event last week at BTC displayed the Soil Sisters' contributions, which Kivirist recounted. Businesses have started as a result of these activities. Cooperative enterprises have formed. Candidates for local office and public service have emerged and won elections. And a whole lot of education and information exchanged.

"I've learned a ton from everyone in the group," said Ashley Wegmuller of Bo and Olly's Produce. "Soil Sisters members are not competitive; they're supportive, and they encourage networking."

Wegmuller's tending more than 30 vegetable varieties on her family's Brown Swiss dairy farm east of Monroe. She has been gearing up to take part in the city's farmer's market this season, and she hopes to start a "farm stay" enterprise.

Betty Anderson, who operates a farm with husband Dane on Avon Road near Brodhead, was also taking part in the Soil Sisters preview last week. Tony Zraggen, who crossed the street to the BTC Enterprise Center from his Alp and Dell cheese store, was glad she did.

"I came to support local businesses," said Zraggen, as he sampled delicacies from the Andersons and talked to her about possibly selling their products in his store.

Alp and Dell carries more than 150 varieties of cheese from between 8 and 10 cheese factories, but especially Emmi Roth USA. It also has a viewing hall to the on-site cheese factory, with viewing open to the public Monday through Friday during the day.

Chef Stephanie Kind, who opened the Black Walnut Kitchen on Monroe's square in January, was also making the rounds at the Soil Sisters event, looking to source more local ingredients for her restaurant. A Navy veteran and reservist, Kind found more veterans among the Soil Sisters.

Lori Stern, whose Cow and Quince restaurant in New Glarus will again feature Taste of Place during the Soil Sisters' kick-off to their 3-day event in August, also spoke briefly at the Enterprise Center in Monroe. Stern said she and her partner in the business now source 94 percent of their ingredients from businesses within 50 miles of New Glarus.

Wisconsin Farmers Union is a key sponsor of the Soil Sisters event. Pat Skogen, new president of the Green Rock, Lafayette South Central Chapter, attended the event last week, too. The chapter is only a few years old and already has more than 250 members.

"I truly believe that the future of local agriculture has got to be feeding our local communities," Skogen said. "WFU women members have always shown up to lead. Soil Sisters is simply taking it a step further and supporting each other."

Wisconsin Small Business Development Center (SBDC) Network announced in late January that it is partnering with Green County Development Corporation (GCDC) this year to boost small business startups and growth.

GCDC received a $40,000 Wisconsin Economic Development Corp. grant to implement an entrepreneurship support strategy here. The effort is engaging, assessing and providing mentorship and coaching resources to current and aspiring entrepreneurs.

"We're delighted to have the Soil Sisters members here for this preview in the Enterprise Center and to help grow our local businesses," said Cara Carper, GCDC Executive Director. "We only had our grand opening a couple of weeks ago, and we've had 3 to 4 events a week since."

"It's especially nice for people who work out of their homes or personal space to be able to meet clients here," Carper said, "or when a lot of business owners like this can get together to showcase their products and services. BTC can provide training to the business owners here, too. Businesses could potentially get instruction, or BTC provide or arrange needed training."

GCDC hopes to create 15 to 20 jobs and assist firms in securing investments of more than $1 million. In addition to the SBDC consulting, GCDC is championing a county-wide mentorship program as it uses this new space called The Enterprise Center at Blackhawk Technical College in Monroe.

GCDC helps individuals who are starting a new business, growing an existing business or looking for a new location, according to its website. GCDC provides direction to data, available buildings and sites, labor force information and demographics. It can also help them access incentives and financial assistance programs.

"The goal of this program is to give new businesses a good start, to grow existing businesses and work to ensure all businesses in Green County have a strong, sustainable future," Carper said. "My job is growing businesses and our communities. It is really neat to watch this growth, such as we see in the Soil Sisters. The more resources we can put to this, the more growth we're going to enjoy."

One of the perks of my job is getting out of the office to do field work. A few weeks ago, I canoed the Platte River near Potosi to find a section of the river suitable for a group paddling event planned for July 14. Check out the photograph – it was an enjoyable day's work. The lower Platte River is scenic, with tall bluffs and plenty of wild-life.

I was thinking that day about the rivers and lakes in southwestern Wisconsin as a resource. One thing we all agree on is how valuable they are, and how we need to protect them as sources of drinking water, and places for fishing, boating, beauty, and natural habitat. One of the biggest threats to the health of these waters is aquatic invasive species. These include non-native plants, clams, crayfish, snails, pathogens, and fish.

liance of Wisconsin, has a helpful listing on their website: <https://www.wisconsinrivers.org/aquatic-invasive-species/>

The zebra mussel is an example of an aquatic invasive species in our area. This tiny shellfish likely came to the U.S. through ballast water of ships entering the Great Lakes.

It displaces native species, hampers boating, fishing, and swimming, and takes a large economic toll. Some estimates of the economic cost are as high as $1 billion per year. It is mainly spread to new waterbodies by boaters inadvertently carrying adult mussels or larvae on boat hulls, and in livewells and bait buckets.

The good news is that we can stop the spread of aquatic invasive species through simple steps that only take a few minutes. Boaters, paddlers, waterfowl hunters, and anglers should follow these steps every time you leave a waterbody:

- Inspect your boat, trailer, and equipment.
- Remove any attached aquatic plants or animals
- Drain all water from boats, motors and all equipment

• Never Move plants or live fish away from a waterbody.

• Buy minnows from a Wisconsin bait dealer. Use leftover minnows only under certain conditions*

Interested in joining us for a paddle and learn about invasive species on the Platte River on July 14? Please check out our website www.swbadger.org or reach out to me for more information.

Cheese Days Parade entries due July 2

Green County Cheese Days is currently accepting applications for The Swiss Colony Cheese Days Parade, scheduled for Sunday, September 16, 2018 at 12:30 p.m. Applications are due July 2, 2018. They have been mailed to those who participated in the last parade.

Parade applications are also available for download from cheesedays.com. Please note that there are different applications for each of the three parade categories:

Float-Unit: for businesses, youth groups, schools, clubs, antique tractors, business mascots, etc. There is a $25 entry fee for this category.

Entertainers: music, bands, dancers, clowns, drill teams, horse/carriage units, jugglers, stilt walkers, etc. Entertainers are asked to either provide their own sponsor to cover costs, OR to indicate a fee if they are requesting payment. Budgetary limitations may impact acceptance into the parade.

Dignitaries: dairy queens, veterans groups, royalty, special visitors, mayor, county board chair, etc. No fee is charged for dignitaries.

The category for Float-Unit is limited to businesses, groups, or organizations located in Green County. Exceptions MAY be made for those beyond county borders with affiliations to the cheese/dairy industry or Swiss heritage.

All floats and units (except tractors and business mascots) are required to reflect one of the parade themes: cheese, dairy farming industry, or Swiss heritage. Applications not specifying details (on how the theme will be incorporated) will be rejected. On parade day, entries not following through on their specified theme details may be removed from parade line-up at the discretion of the committee.

Prizes will again be awarded for the following categories: Best Decorated Float or Unit, and Best Use of Theme. Parade viewers will also be invited to nominate their favorites for the People's Choice Award. Top winners in each category receive $100.

For the complete set of guidelines, refer to www.cheesedays.com > parades.

For questions, call 608.325.7771 or email CheeseDaysParade@outlook.com.

Better Brodhead handing out decals to combat youth drinking

As you are surely aware, underage drinking is illegal. Not only does it produce long-term, adverse effects on one's health, it is also one of the leading causes of death among youth. We're committed to keeping everyone safe during prom and graduation celebrations; won't you join us? Please contact us to get your yard sign, banner, poster or static decal today.

Those who purchase, provide, or pour alcohol for underage drinkers, and the people they injure, can sue you.
