Ringhand, Spreitzer look to new legislative year

By Tony Ends
CORRESPONDENT

State Sen. Janis Ringhand (D-Evansville), has been appointed to five state Senate Committees for the 2017-18 Legislative Session.

Ringhand was named to Economic Development, Commerce and Local Government, Revenue, Financial Institutions and Rural Issues, Labor and Regulatory Reform, Workforce Development, Military Affairs and Senior Issues, and the Building Commission.

"I am honored to be appointed to so many important committees," Ringhand said in a release regarding the appointments last week. "I am excited and look forward to working on the key issues that will come before these committees. I hope they will work in a bipartisan fashion and craft solutions to such vital issues as generating faster economic growth, creating good paying careers, honoring our military veterans, protecting our senior citizens, and making sure rural communities are not left behind," Ringhand said in the release.

Ringhand was named the ranking Democrat on the Committee on Economic Development, Commerce and Local Government, the Committee on Revenue, Financial Institutions and Rural Issues, and the Committee on Workforce Development, Military Affairs and Senior Issues.

She succeeded former Sen. Tim Cullen when he retired from office in 2014. Up to that time, she served two terms in the state Assembly after previously serving as mayor of Evansville.

Democrats hold only 13 of the state senate's 33 district seats. Senate districts comprise three assembly districts in Wisconsin. State senators serve four-year terms.

"It was a very discouraging election season for the Democrats," Ringhand said in response to questions last Friday. "We are still waiting to find out what went wrong with the polling information we received."

"I am not kidding when I say that it was really hard to wrap my head around the results with Hillary Clinton, Russ Feingold, and our State legislators Senator Julie Lassa and Rep. Chris Danou - I know how hard they worked throughout the state and within their districts," Ringhand said. "We will pick up the pieces and move on, keeping honesty and transparency number one at the state level and doing what is right for our constituents at home."

"The issues will be varied this year, from allowing cannabinoid oil for seizure control (I am in favor); to working to reduce the use of narcotics and opioids; to road and infrastructure repairs statewide; to funding education at all levels, and whatever else comes our way," Ringhand said.

Senate Democrats drafted a "Roadmap to Prosperity" last session. They will continue to work off that plan to promote equality in jobs and pay, education, local funding for roads, and all other levels of budgeting, said the state Senator.

"It won't be easy being in such a deep minority, but we have to take the high road and point out short falls, secrecy, and any errors we see. The Republican Majority is just starting to let their agenda be known; much is still not known by the minority," Ringhand said.

"At this time, we can only speculate what will happen at the federal level. President-elect Trump has not been consistent with his remarks or agenda. Concerns for the environment, health care, job equality, fairness at all levels will be in question.

Rep. Mark Spreitzer

My greatest hope is that the system that is in place for checks and balances can do its job and not let our democracy be turned upside down," she said.

At the local level, Ringhand said state Democrats will push for local control rather than state control. "Townships, cities, and villages know what they need better than we do, and we should not make those decisions for them," she told the Independent Register.

"However, we need to make sure existing rules are applied properly and fairly to all. There are concerns about high-capacity wells draining our aquifers and over spreading of manure that can contaminate our water. We cannot allow the rules to be ignored, and we must fight the consequences."

Ringhand said the Democratic Leadership team is meeting this week. "Rep. Spreitzer and I are both part of this team. I am looking forward to hearing what my colleagues have to say about what we will be promoting or opposing in the upcoming session. I will be glad to keep you informed as we learn more," Ringhand said. "We will keep our chins up and continue to speak out about what we see as efforts against our best interests for our state and constituents."

State Rep. Mark Spreitzer (D-Beloit) was inaugurated last Tuesday, Jan. 3, for the 45th Assembly District in the 2017-18 Wisconsin Legislature.

"I am honored and humbled to again serve the constituents of the 45th Assembly District," Rep. Spreitzer said in a press release posted to the Wheeler Report. "I am eager to get to work on the important issues for my district, such as rebuilding a roaring middle-class economy and long-lasting infrastructure, fully funding public education, caring for seniors and children, protecting our environment, and making our government clean, efficient, and transparent," Spreitzer said.

Democratic caucus leaders earlier this fall chose Spreitzer to serve as the Assembly Democratic Caucus Chair for the 2017-18 legislative session.

In this role, Spreitzer said he will strive to help return Assembly Democrats to a governing majority. He said he will also work to ensure Assembly Democrats have access to the tools and resources that are required for success in the 2017-18 legislative session.

Additionally, Spreitzer was appointed to serve on following committees:

- Committee on Agriculture
- Committee on Local Government

Community gathers in Albany for Hall of Fame Night

By Beth Blakemore
CORRESPONDENT

The Albany Comet Athletic Hall of Fame Night was held after a close Albany victory in the girls' junior varsity basketball game on Friday, Jan. 13.

Derik Doescher, the Athletic Director, said that the 2016 Hall of Fame inductees had a "significant impact on Albany Athletics." These inductees included: Paul Alexander, athlete; Terry Chrisbaum, athlete;

Amy Golz, athlete; Gary Armitage, coach and contributor; and the 2000 girls' cross country team, who won the state championship.

Paul Alexander was a three-sport athlete from 1986 to '90. He ran cross country and played basketball and baseball. According to Doescher, Alexander was "one of the best all-around male athletes to graduate from Albany High School."

Terry Chrisbaum was a varsity cross country athlete for three seasons and a varsity track and field athlete for four seasons. "He dominated in the sprints," Doescher said. He ran the 100-meter dash in 10.6 seconds and became the state track and field champion in that event.

Amy Golz was a three-sport athlete from 2004 to 2008. She participated in volleyball, basketball, track and field, and softball. She was the MVP of the basketball team for all four years and scored over 1,000 career points. In softball, she had a 416 batting average.

Gary Armitage was a 1969 graduate of Albany High School. He coached various teams, including the girls' basketball teams from 1997 to 2003. He was "one of the winningest coaches in girls' basketball history," according to Doescher. He also started the Albany Little League program.

Attendees enjoyed a celebration at the Albany Lanes Bowling Alley following the Hall of Fame induction ceremony.

Green County Board Updates

By Erica Roth
BOARD SUPERVISOR

The county issue that has been occupying most of my time lately is the Pinnacle Dairy CAFO issue. I attended the Land and Water Conservation Committee meeting Thursday, Jan. 5, at the UDSA office in Monroe. The meeting covered many topics, including a soil health demonstration, but the majority of the time was spent on a Pinnacle Dairy update and a public comment period. During the update, Todd Jenson, our county conservationist, informed all present that the DNR had approved the plans for Pinnacle Dairy, a 6,000-head confinement dairy on the Decatur-Sylvester town line by Searles Creek.

The public present at this meeting had many questions and concerns. There were a multitude of questions that could not be answered, or answered satisfactorily. The citizens present were voicing concerns about manure spreading, ground water protection, the wear and tear on our roads, the DNR's inability to monitor large farms effectively and reliably, the stench, the economic and social effects on the local communities and Green County as a whole, who to hold responsible and how to hold those people responsible for spills and environmental issues, and many more concerns. The answers given were truthful but not at all satisfactory or acceptable to those in the room, including our county conservationist.

There was a general outcry from the attendees expressing dismay and disbelief that the county board could allow such a generally unwanted business and environmental risk to be allowed into the county at such an unsuitable location. The short yet complicated answer is that due to the stripping away of local control by the state, our hands are tied.

As long as the incoming business has met all of the state's requirements, we cannot deny them. BUT there are a few things our local government can do. Our county and towns can pass ordinances pertaining to the protection of health and safety. I urge you to call or write to your town boards, your county board supervisor, show up at meetings, and ask for protective measures to be taken if this is important to you. Even though the DNR has approved Pinnacle Dairy, there are still local permits that need to be issued.

Pinnacle Dairy needs 7,000 acres of farmland to spread the 90+ million gallons of liquid manure annually. Signed contracts showing they have obtained this acreage are required by the county before they will receive their animal siting permit. These contracts have been submitted and are public record. You can look at them and see if it will be spread near you, near your well, or near any waterways. I have been looking at the contracts, and they reach all over Green County and into Rock and Lafayette Counties. This manure will be trucked over our already deteriorating roads.

This issue is multi-layered and complex to state it simply. There are no easy answers or simple solutions, but your thoughts, whether supporting the dairy or not, are valuable to the local government and the state government.

As I wrote last time, our local control has been stripped by the state for an homogenized, one-size-fits-all approach. We are the stewards of our land and community, and we need to have the freedom to protect our unique, local area of the state.

Do you have something to say? Please say it! Call, write or email your supervisor or town or village board. County information, including supervisor contact information, can be found on the county website at www.co.green.wi.gov. I can be contacted at EricaRothGreenCountyBoard@gmail.com or 608-371-9074.

Thank you for Richard F. Kamps

Thank you to many, many people for phone calls, cards, visits, flowers for Dick's funeral and support. The response was overwhelming and we feel blessed with friends and family for their support.

Winter book discussion seeks food for soulful action

By Tony Ends
CORRESPONDENT

A powerful, entertaining little book is mightily challenging my thinking about food and faith this winter.

I'm teaming up with a powerful scholar of "the word" to reflect on this text in the community for the next 8 weeks. Anyone hungry for some thought-provoking "meals" with us is welcomed to attend for free.

Brodhead Independent-Register
Eating Your Way Through Luke's Gospel will be the focus of a group discussion taking place at 10 a.m. on Sundays between Jan. 22 and Feb. 26 at the Orfordville Lutheran Church. Everyone is welcomed to attend.

Eating Your Way through Luke's Gospel is the book. Rev. Dr. Lee Bohnhoff, a master of translation and interpretation, is my partner in reading, exploring, and conversing over this text.

Tony Ends

Orfordville Lutheran Church is letting the two of us meet each Sunday at 10 a.m. following morning services to facilitate this reading. The church has even helped make copies of the book available for the series, to be held Jan. 22 through Feb. 26 at 210 N. Main in Orfordville.

What's an old newspaper-man-turned-farmer got to contribute to this reading and discussion?

I confess a strange and checkered spiritual walk. Born protestant, I studied in a Catholic university. Baptized Lutheran as an adult, I was confirmed Episcopalian in marriage.

Along the way, I sang psalms in a synagogue, prayed with Moslems, and at times, lost faith from what I experienced or saw of hunger, extreme poverty, death, and divorce.

Numbering among only two people in 100 who still farm has helped me understand something about my culture, though. Biblical stories and lessons written largely to farming, herding, fishing people centuries ago have become for too many of us, irrelevant, or at least hard to understand, today.

Enter Franciscan theologian and scriptural teacher Robert J. Karris, author of Eating Your Way through Luke's Gospel. Karris is head of research at Franciscan Institute, St. Bonaventure University, in New York. He's also a very frequent speaker on the importance of acting on faith to address the needs of the poor.

Lee Bohnhoff

What better way for a people who love to eat, snack, and dine, to clearly understand relationships relevant to life and the world today!

As I read again Luke's Gospel, with the help of Karris' book, my eyes are opened to this relevancy and importance. Karris first helps me understand what food, drink, meat, wine, fish, bread, hospitality and "symposiums over food" were like in Roman Palestine.

He then challenged me to read the book of Luke, deliberately looking for, even counting my way to more than 70 references to food.

"In Luke's Gospel," Karris writes, "Jesus is either going to a meal, at a meal, or coming from a meal. References to food abound on almost ev-half, holding a 25-12 advantage at halftime. Sophomore Payton Zurfluh led the Comets' offensive attack with a game-high 18 points. Junior Madeline Halverson added nine points, and sophomore Megan Anderson chipped in eight points for Albany.

Panthers pummel Pecatonica

The Panthers dominated the first half as they built a 37-6 lead at the half. Senior Chelsea Burkhalter led the Panthers' offensive attack with 13 points, including 10 in the second half. Sophomore Hannah Powers chipped in nine points. Juda had 11 different players score in the contest.

Boys' basketball Juda crushes Belmont

The Juda Panthers (7-4 overall, 2-2 Six Rivers) set the tone in the first half en route to a 66-28 Six Rivers crossover road victory over Belmont last Monday.

Juda's suffocating defense forced over 20 turnovers, which led to several transition opportunities. The Panthers built a double-digit lead 27-15 at intermission and never looked back. Junior Keagen Haffeled led the Panthers' offensive charge with 23 points and five steals. Senior Joe Rackow contributed 12 points with eight coming in the first half. Senior Skyler Stuckey scored all of his 11 points in the second half. Senior Matt Schmitt added eight points for the Panthers.

Panthers defeat Ponies

The Juda Panthers (8-4 overall, 3-2 Six Rivers) won their second straight game as they picked up a 68-29 win over the Monticello Ponies in a Six Rivers eastern division contest last Thursday.

The Panthers had a great team performance to earn the victory. After making some adjustments at half, the Panthers moved the ball well, which resulted in better shots against the Ponies' tough 2-3 zone in the second half. Juda had three players in double figures. Junior Keagen Haffeled led the Panthers' offensive attack with 19 points, including four threes, five assists, and three steals. Senior Joe Rackow added 18 points and six rebounds for the Panthers. Senior Matt Schmitt chipped in 14 points with 10 coming in the first half. Schmitt also snatched 14 rebounds.

Vikings fall to Blue Devils

The Evansville Blue Devils cruised to a 90-42 win over Parkview (2-9 overall, 1-6 Rock Valley) in a Rock Valley crossover clash last Thursday.

The Blue Devils raced out to a 43-27 halftime lead. Evansville duo Brennan Banks and Zach Mielke did major damage, combining for 49 points. Sophomore Eli Hosheit led the Vikings' offensive charge with 15 points, including four threes. Sophomore Aydon Campbell and senior Allen Rodriguez each chipped in seven points.

Rock County Hazard Mitigation Plan Updated draft ready for public review

The State of Wisconsin has endured billions of dollars in damages over the past three decades as a result of various disasters, including severe weather and flooding events, major snowstorms, and powerful tornados. While the costs of each disaster may vary greatly, the impact is always the hardest at the local level, impacting our communities the most.

A recent study by the Multi-Hazard Mitigation Council shows that each dollar spent on mitigation saves society an average of four dollars in future costs. Hazard mitigation breaks the cycle of damage and repair by reducing or eliminating the long-term risk to human life and property caused by the potential hazards. These preventative actions may be as simple as elevating a furnace in a basement in an effort to prevent water damage. Mitigation efforts may also take a more comprehensive approach, such as relocating buildings out of the floodplain or strengthening critical facilities to prevent wind damage and provide stronger shelter.

In an effort to better prepare Rock County's vulnerability to disaster, the Rock County Sheriff's Office-Emergency Management Bureau applied for, received, and has now updated the Rock County Hazard Mitigation Plan through a Pre-Disaster Mitigation (PDM) planning grant. The updated plan serves as a roadmap that outlines potential cost-effective hazard mitigation activities, some of which might be available for future grant funding. The plan highlights the risks and vulnerabilities that Rock County faces from natural disasters and highlights mitigation strategies that may reduce future losses.

The draft is available for public comment until Tuesday, Jan. 24. The plan is available for public review Monday through Friday between the hours of 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. at the lobby of the Rock County Healthcare Center, located at 3530 North County Highway F, Janesville, and may be viewed online at http://www.co.rock.wi.us/images/web_documents/departments/emergency_management/hazard_mitigation_plan.pdf

This is Spreitzer's second term in the State Assembly. In the 2015-16 session, He served on eight committees and was selected as co-chair of the Assembly Democratic Freshman Caucus. Prior to taking office, Spreitzer served as Beloit City Council President and worked for his alma mater, Beloit College.

The 45th Assembly District includes portions of Rock and Green counties, and includes the communities of Brodhead, Albany, Evansville, Orfordville, and Beloit. Spreitzer ran unopposed in this past election. Ringhand will face re-election in 2018. She represents Wisconsin Senate District 15, which includes portions of Green, Dane, Jefferson, Walworth, and Rock counties.

"Even though the Republicans currently enjoy single-party control of state government, there are still ways for Democrats to stand up and have input," Ringhand told the Independent Register. "We saw examples of this last legislative session when the Republicans tried to change the mission statement for University of Wisconsin, or when the secret proposal to gut our open records was placed into the budget in the middle of the night."

"It is also important for us to build relationships, even with those we disagree with. Democrats bring forth proposals and ideas in committee and amend proposals before they are voted on by the full Senate. You cannot do that unless you work with the party in control. It might be frustrating at times, but it is how democracy works," she said.

"I recently served on the Commission on Government Reform, Efficiency, and Performance, where we worked together to look at ways to eliminate duplication in how we provide services. My background in local government gives an understanding of how policies decided in Madison affect communities like Brodhead.

"Democrats have to speak up and make our case not only in the Capitol and on the Senate floor, but to the families and communities throughout the state that are affected by the actions of the legislature. We need to do a better job of showing people throughout Wisconsin that Democrats are the party of working people."

Reflecting on recent published accounts of initiatives that Republican national and state majorities intend to press in government, Ringhand had this to say:

"It is very important that we respect local government [and] listen to their concerns. More and more, the legislature is trying to impose its will on local communities, eroding local control and eliminating the people who are ground from the process," Ringhand said.

"When we look at school funding, we have to protect the independence of local communities and schools. It is always a concern when the word 'reform' is used as an excuse to cut budgets and reduce services. The same goes for paying for local services. A one-size-fits-all approach is outdated, and we need to find ways to continue providing services more effectively."

Reversals for her Democratic Party in Wisconsin, stretching back to the failed recall of Gov. Scott Walker, up through the defeat of former U.S. Sen. Russ Feingold and the continued losses of seats in the state Legislature do not seem to have deterred Ringhand's resolve.

"Over the years, I have seen the ups and downs of both political parties in Wisconsin," she said. "It is frustrating that Democrats have not done better in the state legislative races. We have to continue to stand up for our beliefs and the people we represent."

"My experience in local government has helped me to work with people with whom I don't necessarily agree. At the end of the day, we are all responsible for standing up for the people at home. Being able to work with colleagues from all political stripes is still the best way to get your point across and get things done in the minority."

Even from this minority position, Ringhand laid out a full agenda to keep pressing for the 15th State Senate District.

"I will continue to push for the completion of Interstate 39/90 from the Illinois border to Madison. It is the most dangerous stretch of road in the state," she said. "The economic and safety impacts of finishing the expansion are too important to allow for further delays."

"I am the author of legislation for paid family and medical leave. Even though Republicans are unlikely to accept this concept, it is important for us to have an agenda that reflects the needs of the people. With talk of looking to revamp the school aid formula, we will have to make sure that it isn't used as a tool to shift more funding to private schools or to wealthy areas of the state."

"There are also issues that affect local people and communities. I authored a bill recommended to me by a constituent to allow a limited amount of baked goods to be sold by individuals without having to make them in a commercial kitchen," she said.

"Senate Democrats will continue to support the effort started by former Senators Tim Cullen and Dale Schultz to establish a non-partisan redistricting process. Hopefully, now that the courts have determined that the Republicans gerrymandered the maps in 2011, we can move forward and create maps that won't clearly favor one political party."

• DISCUSSION

ery single page of Luke's Gospel."

Why? What themes were intended? What was the relationship of food to power? What is food's relationship to power today? Who is exercising that power and why?

Short, probing questions following each chapter in this slender, yet very full book, help readers reflect on how each story in Luke from long ago can nurture us today.

One of several reasons I look forward to working through the book in a group is that Lee Bohnhoff is taking up the task, too.

I've recounted in this newspaper my history of work in Africa back to the Peace Corps in 1975, up through volunteer trips to Senegal and work in the Congo the past 4 years. I share a deep appreciation for Africa with Lee.

A 1958 graduate of Luther College and a 1962 graduate of Luther Theological Seminary, Lee recently retired from 39 years of Lutheran mission work in Cameroon.

The year he graduated from seminary in St. Paul, he married Eloise Hanson, and they went to Paris, France for a year to study French before arriving in Cameroon in September 1963.

He worked in the Dii language (pronounced Dee), where over the years, he trained 11 people for work in the Dii Literature Center. Each person learned to read, write, type, edit, create or translate, and mimeograph books and booklets for church use in Dii.

Lee had to teach the center employees how to manipulate a computer, diskettes and printer - when (and if) there was enough electricity to run the machines. There is none in Mbé where the Dii Literature Team works, so they sometimes had to work in Ngaoundéré.

The literature team produced a whole series of Dii books and booklets, some going through several editions over the years: primers and readers to teach reading and writing in Dii; hymnal, catechism, liturgy book, Bible stories booklets, evangelism tracts for ELCC work; development booklets on pregnancy, how to care for children, the danger of pesticides, how to improve cooking; and general literature and technical items like calendars, a Dii-French dictionary, a Dii Phonology and Grammar, booklets of folktales, and a Dii language course for expatriates, including audio tapes.

Lee's last year in Cameroon saw published the latest edition of the hymnal, 91 selected Old Testament Psalms and the whole New Testament in the Dii language.

Eloise died in 1969 and is buried in Ngaoundéré. Lee remarried in 1979, to Torbjørgh Johanne Heimstad, who was working with the Norwegian Mission Society at the time.

They retired to the United States in 2001. Torbjørgh passed away in 2012 and is buried in Orfordville Lutheran Cemetery. Lee continues to live in Orfordville.

I've already started learning from Lee what he's learned and taught of Luke, a physician whose writing shows the best command of Greek in the Gospels.

Luke was also sort of an early reporter, interviewing people about the life of Jesus and writing about it. He is believed to have left his work as a physician in Antioch to follow the Apostle Paul.

Modern medicine is attributed to a Greek, Hippocrates, who lived some 400 years before Luke. Such lasting and pervasive influence as Hippocrates has had on medicine, it seems obvious his teachings are reflected in Luke's writing.

For Hippocrates, health is food. It is intimately connected to what makes us strong or weak, healthful or sick, nourished or malnourished, fit or fat.

This brings us round to the beginning, the joy of eating and the quest for ethical living in Luke's gospel. The invitation is open to everyone.

Alice in Dairyland visits Parkview fourth-graders

Ann O'Leary, Wisconsin's 69th Alice in Dairyland, visited Parkview Elementary School (PES) fourth-graders on Wednesday, Jan. 11.

As Wisconsin's Ag Ambassador, O'Leary will visit at least 100 fourth-grade classrooms and teach approximately 10,000 students more about Wisconsin Agriculture before her year as Alice ends. Students learn about the economic impact agriculture has on the Wisconsin economy and the many healthy foods grown in Wisconsin.

O'Leary started by asking the students "What is agriculture?" and "What is a farm?" She then explained that one in nine people employed in the state of Wisconsin has a job that is related to agriculture in some way. It could be as a farmer, in a food processing plant, transporting food, selling food products, programming equipment that is used in agriculture, or many other diverse jobs that are part of agriculture.

Dairy alone contributes 43.4 billion dollars to the state economy. She had students help her demonstrate this by selecting four students to represent some phases of employment in the dairy industry. The first was the farmer who milks the cows; next was the milk truck driver who comes to the farm and takes the milk to the cheese factory, then the cheesemaker who makes the cheese from the milk, and finally, the store owner who sells the cheese.

Students then learned about some of the foods produced in Wisconsin.

O'Leary showed them a slide of the five main food groups (fruits, vegetables, grains, proteins, and dairy) and asked the students if they were familiar with it. Students then heard hints describing foods produced in various areas of the state and tried to name the foods. O'Leary explained that Wisconsin produces food in all five food groups. Students were able to guess the majority of them with the hints.

Students learned the health benefits of each food and how Wisconsin ranked in production of many of the foods. They learned that Wisconsin is #1 in the nation in production of four foods: cheddar cheese, cranberries, carrots, and green beans. Wisconsin grows one-third of the nation's green beans and half of the nation's cranberries. They also learned that Wisconsin is third in the nation in producing potatoes. O'Leary shared nutritional facts such as strawberries contain more vitamin C ounce per ounce than oranges do.

At the end of the program, each student received a poster showing where foods are grown, an autographed postcard, and a Colby cheese stick. O'Leary posed for photos with each class, as well.

Before she left, O'Leary also introduced a special guest in the room, her father, Craig O'Leary, who works at the Farmers & Merchants bank in Orfordville. He enjoyed the opportunity to see his daughter at work in her role as Alice in Dairyland.

Who are the Amish?

Topic set for Green County Genealogical Society meeting

Mark Loudon, Max Kade Institute co-director, a Mennonite and fluent speaker of Pennsylvania Dutch, will be the speaker for the Feb. 4 meeting of the Green County Genealogical Society. He will speak on the Old Order Amish, one of America's most familiar yet widely misunderstood religious groups.

Professor Mark Loudon will address the central aspects of Amish life and the Christian faith that anchors it, with a special emphasis on Amish communities in Wisconsin, which has the fourth-largest population of any U.S. state. He will clarify a number of misunderstandings about the Amish, as well as their close spiritual cousins, the Mennonites.

The Green County Genealogical Society meeting will be held in the second-floor meeting room of the Monroe Public Library at 10 a.m. on Saturday, Feb. 4. Visitors are always welcomed, and there is no cost to attend. You may call Sharon (815-868-2416) or Donna (608-921-1537) if you have questions.

The GCGS Research Center (located in the lower level of the Monroe Public Library) is available each Tuesday and third Saturday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. and the first Saturday from 1 to 3 p.m.
